As a global girls’ rights and humanitarian organisation, Plan International’s experience indicates that girls and young women are particularly vulnerable in health emergencies. We call on governments to include meaningful participation of girls and women in its decision-making processes related to the COVID-19 response and recognise that outbreaks, quarantines and isolation affect girls and boys, women and men differently.

We believe that sex and age-appropriate interventions that address increased risk of child marriage, sexual violence, sexual reproductive health and rights, mental health and burden of domestic work facing girls and women are particularly essential and we call on countries to provide foreign assistance to increase funding in light of COVID-19, including intensifying support and preventive measures in refugee and displacement settings.

-Htu Mai, Youth Leader

Plan International Myanmar has launched a virtual youth-led education and protection campaign together with UNICEF. The first of its kind, the campaign is spearheaded by 125 young leaders, with over 700 of their peers, in Mandalay Regional and Kachin State to raise awareness about COVID-19 and promote reporting pathways for child protection and gender-based violence issues during this time of increased isolation.

As part of the campaign, youth leaders are drawing and painting sun ally symbols near their homes to signify sharing a light on incidents of violence and abuse that might otherwise be ignored. It also lets their peers and other community members know that they have an ally during these difficult times.

"All the more during the quarantine, we must protect and promote children’s rights at all times. We must be extra careful as online threats are now heightened. There are online scammers and predators seeking to prey on the most vulnerable ones in the world of internet - children."
