

Until we are all equal

Youth

Campaigners

Toolkit

HEY!

WHAT is this toolkit for?

Use this toolkit to design and implement your own campaigns for girls' leadership and power in your own context.

This toolkit is for all of us - you, me, your friends, your neighbour! It's for anyone who wants to create a world where girls, young women and other marginalised identities have the power, freedom and representation to make decisions and shape the world around them, as equals. Youth activists are not just the future. We are also the present and we won't stop until we are all equal.

We didn't want to recreate the wheel by making another long toolkit. Rather, we wanted to share resources and tools that are already out there. So, we've included external resources, websites and webinars from other organisations. They are fully credited!

WHO is this toolkit for?

Contents

Section 1	Plan International's Approach to Campaigning	4
Section 2	Let's get to work: campaigning basics!	6
	Cut-Out Cards to outline your campaign	8
	What are the key elements of a campaign?	10
	How to develop campaign objectives	12
	How to conduct an analysis of your context	14
	What are the different campaigning strategies?	17
	Tips for campaign messaging	22
	How to work with others	26
	Manage risks to yourself, others and your campaign	28
	Self-care and collective care	29
	How to fundraise effectively and sustainably	30
	Reflection and learning	31
Section 3	Lets take action!	33
	Ideas and actions	34
	Templates	37

Who's in the cover photo?

Top centre:
Fátima, Peru

Top right:
Shamikshya, Nepal

Top left:
Janet, Kenya

Bottom centre:
Marie-Reine, Togo

Bottom right:
Sedra, Syria / Canada

Bottom left:
Doris, Peru

Section One

Plan International's Approach to Campaigning

Impact Campaign

Plan International defines their campaigns as a concerted effort to bring about positive change with decision-makers in order to reach a specific, defined and time-sensitive goal. It will not be one single action, but a combination of activities that integrate communications, advocacy and meaningful youth participation.

Our guiding principles:

Impact-led

Impact campaigns should be driven by clearly defined goals and strategies, resulting in positive change by decision-makers. Impact campaigns support the delivery of your goals by seeking political, programmatic/policy, and social norms change.

Youth-centred

Young people like you are Plan's critical partners for achieving gender equality and we will always put them at the centre of our activism and campaigning.

Nationally led, globally connected

Plan's campaigns will be driven by country level priorities and will champion locally-led action, delivering impact for girls in the communities and countries they live. We will use our position as a global organisation to connect our joint efforts for change, build global solidarity and share cross-regional learnings.

Boys and men as allies

Girls and young women, in all their diversity, are at the forefront of driving Plan's campaigns. This is because they are the most impacted by gender injustices. However, boys and men are critical partners and allies. Boys and men are also negatively impacted by gender inequality – from the expectations placed on them to be tough, emotion-less, masculine and heterosexual to the social pressures to be successful breadwinners, physically dominant and “manly”. Without boys and men, we cannot create the gender equal world that Plan International envisions. In a gender equal world, everybody wins.

Boys and men, in all their diversity, have vital roles to play as change-makers and champions of gender equality. They have essential roles in engaging their peers in campaigns, challenging gender norms and helping to make space for girls' and young women's voices and leadership.

Three ways to describe your role:

I am an ally

I am a partner

I am sharing my power

Francois (right), 17, is a member of the SRHR club at his school in Rwanda
©Plan International/Solange Iradukunda

Section Two

Let's get to work!

She Leads advocates Felicity, Korotoumou, and Bernice championed girls' rights at the 56th UN Human Rights Council session. They spoke at key events, advocating for leadership, autonomy, and protection from harassment, and met with Special Rapporteur Elisa Morgera and OHCHR staff in Geneva. ©Plan International/Enzo Tabet Cruz

Cut-Out Cards to outline your campaign

This template will help you shape a campaign vision. Start by choosing the general theme for your campaign, analysing the current situation and describing the change you want to see going forward. In the next page you will find an example of how you can fill-in the template using the theme "Girls' Leadership".

Print and cut out!

(Enter theme here)

The situation

.....

.....

.....

.....

Key facts

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

(Enter theme here)

The Change we want

.....

.....

Immediate

.....

.....

Long-term

.....

.....

Who's involved?

.....

.....

.....

(Enter theme here)

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

Example:

Girls' Leadership

Support girls and young women, in all their diversity, to become powerful leaders and participate in all decisions affecting their lives.

The situation

Everywhere in the world, girls and young women are excluded from positions of power, leadership and decision-making processes.

Key facts

- Globally, only 24% of parliamentary seats are held by women.
- Less than 2% of the world's parliamentarians are under the age of 30.
- Globally, 1 in 4 companies have no women in senior management roles.
- A study of approximately 22,000 companies in 91 countries found that companies with female CEOs produce higher profits.

Girls' Leadership

The change we want

New pathways to power are embedded in institutions so that girls and young women are seen, heard and valued as leaders!

Immediate

By 2026, we want to see girls and young women participating and have their priorities reflected in multiple political party manifestos within at least 5 countries and 1 global presidency

Long-term

'Nothing about her without her'. We will reform institutional processes and structures to ensure girls and young women always have a seat at the decision-making table.

Who's involved?

Political decision-makers and powerholders at all levels – local, district, national, regional and global.

Girls' Leadership

In 2022, there were 28 women heads of state or prime ministers across 193 countries.

Only 21% of government ministerial posts were held by women.

In 2022 a research was carried out on leadership ambitions and realities with over 29,000 girls and young women participating across 29 countries. The study found that 94% of respondents recognized significant barriers to their participation in politics, and globally, only 11% were generally happy with their political leaders' decisions on issues they care about.

For the full report and more key findings, check out our 2022: Girls Get Equal: Equal Power Now Report.

What are the key elements of a campaign?

Committed co-leaders

People to coordinate the campaign strategy and delivery of activities!

A goal

This is what you ultimately want to achieve through your campaign.

A vision

A vision is your idea of a Utopia. It might sound silly to imagine an ideal world that doesn't exist, but the image of that world is the best way for you to make sure you share people in your organization or movement share values and vision of what you're trying to achieve. This helps when you're communicating with others about the world you hope to create through your campaign or community action (see Activist Handbook)

An objective

What do you want to change? Your objective is the concrete thing you are trying to achieve. Some examples of this are:

- A policy change
- A change in law
- A budget commitment
- New services to ensure girls' and young women's safety on public transport

Your objective is something that you think will have an impact on girls and young women. It should be SMART: Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Realistic and Time-bound!

A target

Think about whose mind or actions you need to change to achieve your objective? This could be decision-makers, politicians, traditional leaders, private sector companies, media and entertainment bodies, civil society or your peers.

Tactics and activities

There is a wealth of effective and exciting tactics that you could use to activate your campaign, these include:

- Strategic communications
- Gathering data and research
- Lobbying your government
- Public mobilisation (online and offline)
- Building partnerships and coalitions with likeminded people, groups, networks or organisations

Fundraising activities

In some contexts, especially those that are politically restrictive, tactics like public mobilisation can be challenging or unsafe. "How to conduct an analysis of your context" will help to assess what tactics and activities might be the most strategic, safe and effective in your particular community, country or region.

Managing risks

No matter how exciting your campaign is, it's always important consider the risks, who might be affected and how to manage those risks. How to manage risks to yourself, others and your campaign will be useful to think through this key topic.

Allies and Audience

Think about who you will engage to influence your decision-makers and who is directly affected by your campaign. Stakeholder analysis: how to map who is important to your campaign will provide some useful tools to identify these.

Tailored messaging

The way you "sell" or communicate your campaign will vary depending on the audience. Think back to (a) who you want to influence (i.e. the decision-makers) and (b) your stakeholders. With certain audiences such as partners, allies or other stakeholders who are "on-board" with your campaign, you might be more bold and confrontational in your messaging. At the same time, for stakeholders from whom you anticipate a bit of resistance, you might soften your language and frame your messaging in terms of how your campaign ultimately benefits or accelerates their interests.

Plan International's resources provide key messaging and examples, but you should feel free to adapt this to your context and shape the language and framing in a way that you believe will receive the most positive outcome

Monitoring Success

How will you ensure your campaign's success? Throughout your campaign, it's important to constantly track whether your tactics and activities are having the intended influence.

Fundraising

Fundraising is crucial for a campaign's success but it can be tricky, especially if your group or organisation is informal or unregistered. We've got some tips for you in How to fundraise effectively and sustainably

Many young activists tell us, "Look, great laws and policy frameworks already exist, the problem is that they are not being implemented!"

In many contexts around the world, this is the case. Often power-holders do not have political will, training, budget or capacity to implement laws and policies. Of course, this is very frustrating. In this case, a change in policy or law may not be the most strategic objective for your campaign. Instead, your objective might be focused on making sure they implement the policies and laws in existence (e.g. by committing budget or setting up a new community service).

Tools!

Here are some great toolkits to take you through the process:

There are so many campaign toolkits that exist already. You can use these to take you through the steps of designing a campaign. The next few pages gives some tips and recommendations from Plan International's perspective. We hope you find them useful!

- See stories by Beautiful Rising of memorable campaigns analysing what worked and what didn't and why
- Beautiful Rising's Toolbox gives you 70+ time-tested guidelines for how to design successful campaigns
- Plan International's Advocacy Toolkit

How to develop campaign objectives

Once you've identified which campaign goal you want to focus on now it's time to think about what specific concrete thing you want to achieve! This is called a campaign objective. Your campaign objective(s) could be, for example:

A change in law

e.g. for the legal age of marriage to be raised to 18 years in your region.

A policy change

e.g. for your government to introduce a gender quota to increase the representation of young women in parliament.

A budget commitment

e.g. for the Ministry of Education to fund a new national curriculum for girls to learn their digital rights online.

A change in law

e.g. for your local Mayor to set up a safe and confidential hotline for girls and young women who have experienced public harassment to access support.

Here is an excellent resource by Beautiful Trouble on how to develop smart objectives

There are endless possibilities of what your campaign objective might be. But, ideally, it needs to be SMART:

Specific

Questions that can make your objective more specific are:

- What exactly are we hoping to achieve?
- Why is this important?
- What are the benefits to reaching this goal?

Measurable

Questions that can help with this are:

- How will we know that the change has happened?
- What are the indicators of success?
- How will we measure these indicators of success?

Achievable

Consider the following questions:

- Has anyone ever done this successfully?
- Is this possible in the deadline we have set?
- What factors might restrict success? e.g. (political, cultural, logistical)

Realistic

Consider these factors:

- Is this objective aligned with your group's mission and vision?
- Are any ethical principles jeopardized by this objective?
- Are there enough resources available?

Time-bound

Consider these questions:

- Is there a window of opportunity within which we need to act? (e.g. before the next election, board meeting, etc.)
- When will this objective be reached?

If you are campaigning on:

Equal Power

POOR: We want to increase women's political representation in local government.

SMART: By 2025, we want our local government to fund and deliver leadership programmes for all girls aged 10 – 15 in our municipality.

If you are campaigning on:

Equal Freedom in Public

POOR: We want to stop the street harassment of girls and women.

SMART: By 2022, we want all major public transport services in our city to have a reporting mechanism for the harassment and abuse of girls and young women.

If you are campaigning on:

Equal Freedom Online

POOR: We want to end cyber-bullying of girls and young women on social media.

SMART: By 2023, we want a new law that holds social media companies to account for hosting abusive and illegal content.

If you are campaigning on:

Equal Freedom Representation

POOR: We want to stop the promotion of harmful stereotypes on TV.

SMART: By 2024, we want the top advertising companies in our country to be banned from using and promoting sexist stereotypes in any content.

How to conduct an analysis of your context

Stakeholders

Once you know WHAT you want to change, you must think about WHO can make that change happen. It's time to map your stakeholders. Who do you need to influence? And who else will you partner with to influence them?

The next step in your campaign is to understand and map out two main things: STAKEHOLDERS and SYSTEMS that have power over that issue.

Stakeholders

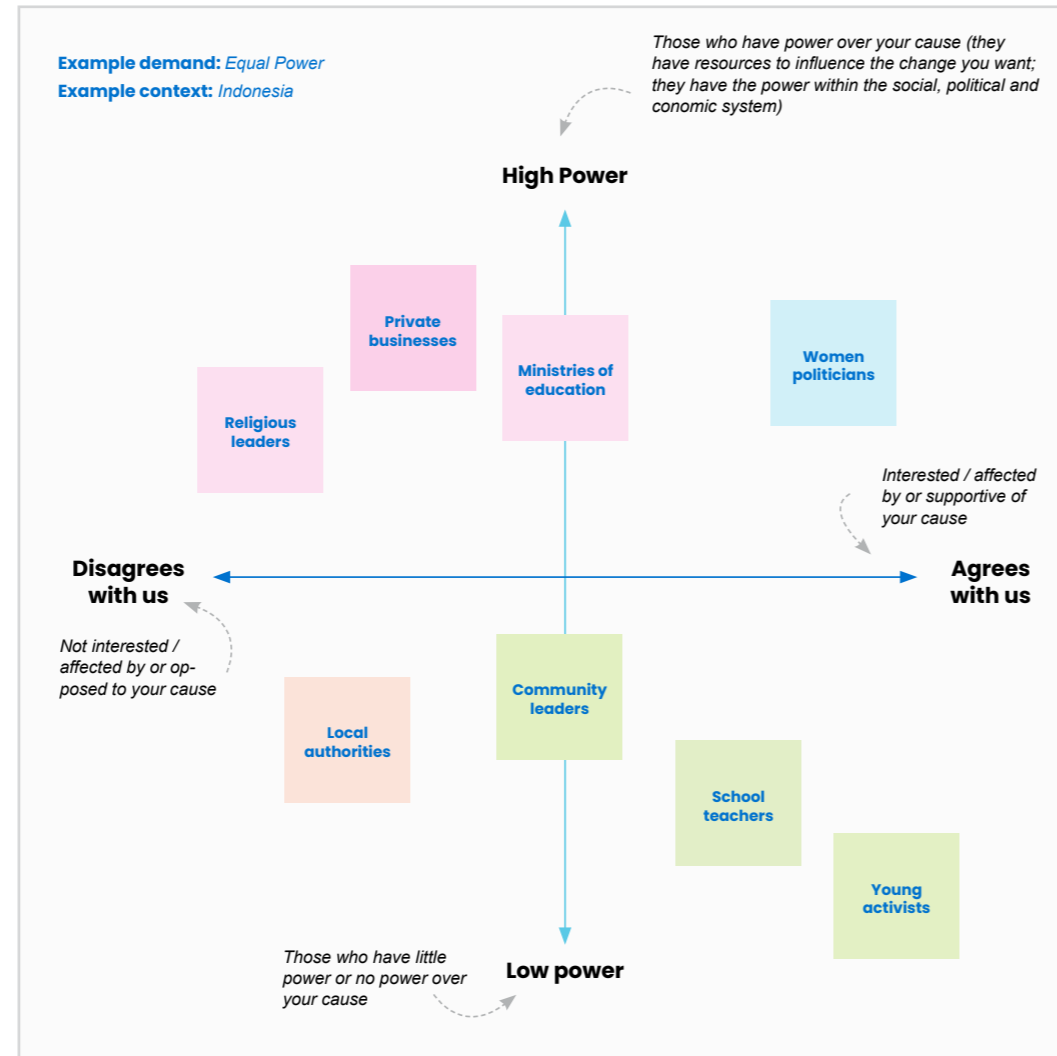

Identify the key actors in your context who have power over your issue or are affected by it – including key organisations, networks, activists, decision-makers, political parties media bodies, private companies etc. Are they opponents or supporters of your campaign issues?

Try activity one to map out who you should focus your energy on - who do you want to influence or partner with to achieve your campaign?

Once you've identified your stakeholders in activity one, see how they fit into activity table two, to determine which stakeholders you will focus your energy and resources on and, what strategy you can use to target them.

As you go through these activities, keep in mind:

1. Which campaign demand will you focus on?
2. What is your vision and objectives?

Activity One: Stakeholder Mapping
Plot who has a stake in your campaign.

Activity Two: which stakeholders to target and how?

	Agrees with us	Disagrees with us
High Power	Strategy: Influence Consult them directly or speak to experts/ research to discover what influences their decision-making. Lobby this group to make decisions that support your campaign. Examples: policy-makers, local-decision makers, private companies, media	Strategy: Satisfy It can take a lot of resource and energy to engage with this group. Sometimes, it can be very strategic to directly influence this group. Sometimes, it might be too risky or not worthwhile. Research the position of these stakeholders as your campaign progresses. Examples: religious institutions, some media, some NGOs
Low Power	Strategy: Collaborate, consult and involve Those who are the most affected by what your campaign is trying to change will be in this category. This is your target group to organise or mobilise for people power! Examples: Girls and young women in your local community, fellow activists, schools/ teachers	Strategy: monitor It's probably not worth your energy and time to target this group. They're not interested and they have no power to influence your issue. This is a low priority group. Nonetheless, you should monitor their position and ability to impact your campaign periodically. You could involve if they add value and if you have the extra resources/time to do so. Examples: local businesses affected by your campaign

Tools!

Click on these tools to guide your stakeholder analysis:

Stakeholder analysis or visit: <https://bit.ly/2UwyC01>

Power mapping or visit: beautifulrising.org/tool/power-mapping

Spectrum of allies or visit: beautifulrising.org/tool/spectrum-of-allies

Peel the onion or visit: beautifulrising.org/tool/peel-the-onion

Systems

You will also need to analyse Political, Economic, Social/cultural/ religious, Technological, Legal and Environmental (or PESTLE) factors that have influence in your context. This includes trends, social, cultural or religious barriers/enablers, policy and legal frameworks, and opportunities or challenges to advance your campaign in your specific context. Use these tools to guide your systems analysis:

PESTLE Tool

by UN Women or visit: <https://bit.ly/2Js2S65>

Problem Tree Analysis

by WeRise (werise-toolkit.org) or visit: <https://bit.ly/2UPTnCQ>

Systems Mapping Tool

by MobLab (mobilisationlab.org) or visit: <https://bit.ly/2JrSr2e>

.....
Here are some more really useful tools by Beautiful Rising (beautifulrising.org):

Pillar of power

or visit: beautifulrising.org/tool/pillars-of-power

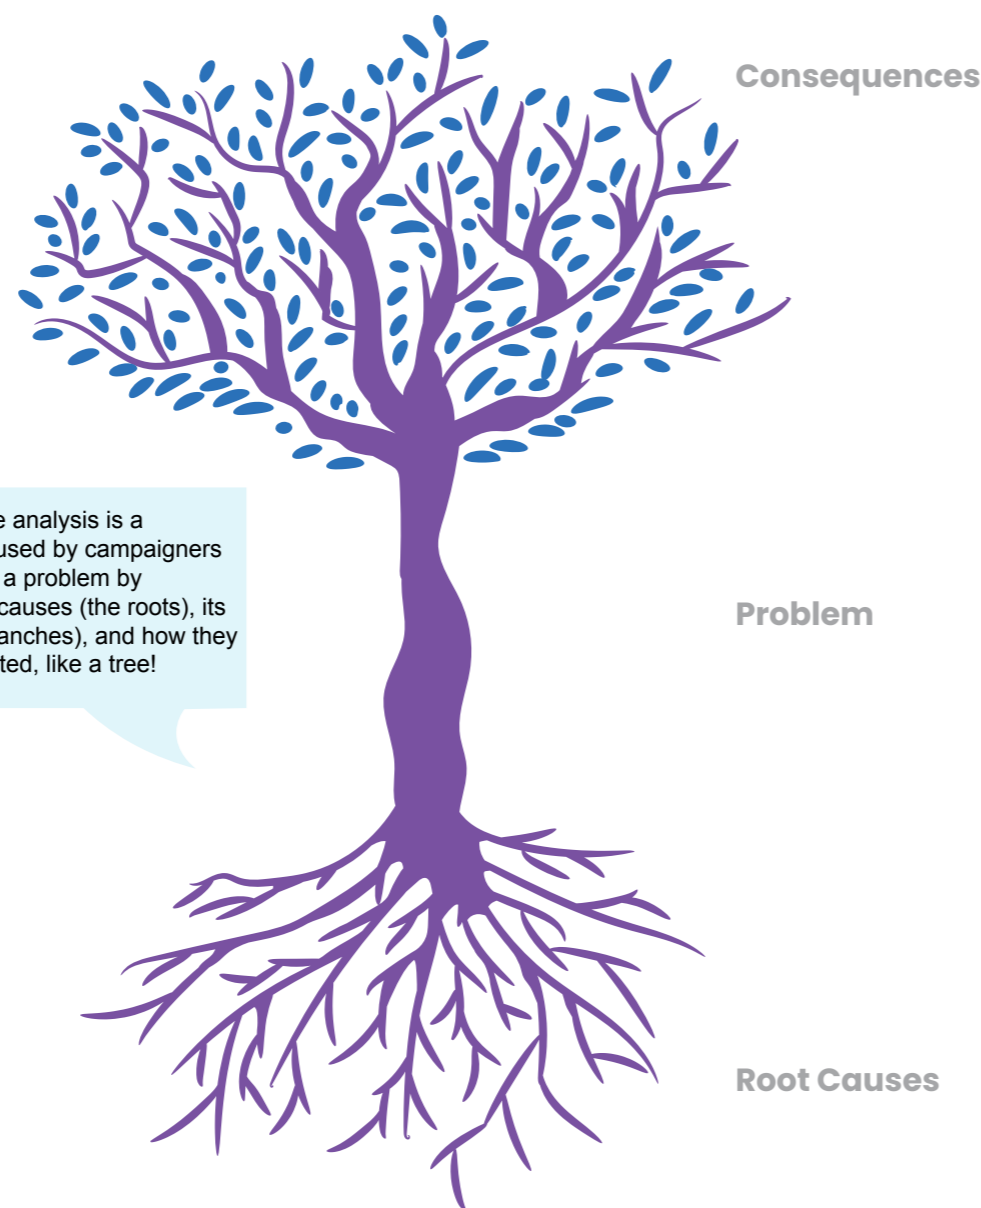

Points of intervention

or visit: beautifulrising.org/tool/points-of-intervention

SWOT analysis

or visit: beautifulrising.org/tool/swot

Click here to see Beautiful Rising's big picture ideas that help us understand the world or visit: beautifulrising.org/type/theory

What are the different campaigning strategies?

There are many different strategic approaches that you can use in order to achieve your campaign objective(s). These can be a mixture of advocacy, policy, public mobilisation (online and offline), strategic communications, partnerships, and research/ data gathering. There is no “one size fits all”; it will depend on your objectives, context and stakeholders.

Advocacy

- Analyse political environments
- Identify strategic targets to bring about change
- Engage and manage relationships with stakeholders
- Lobby policy- and decision-makers
- Use evidence and key facts from Plan International resources, research and policy analysis as the basis of advocacy
- Organise events, roundtables, workshops, festivals etc.

Policy

Understand and analyse relevant policy and legal frameworks that affect your campaign. Research what policy and legal frameworks your decision-makers and target audiences are bound by. What policy and legal frameworks need to be changed and how for the success of your campaign? (Consider local, national, regional and global levels)

Building partnerships

Collective action! Mutually harnessing the diverse resources and reach of all partners will maximise collective action

Research and evidence

Plan Internationals' Activist Hub and State of the World's Girls Reports provide you with thoroughly researched evidence and recommendations on different campaign demands. Check out reports from previous years to find statistics about: Digital Rights, Online Safety, Political Participation, Girls' Activism and more. Stay tuned for more resources.

To gather more evidence in your specific context, here are some research methods you can use:

Use existing information: what's out there already on the Internet, in academic, civil society or government reports etc.

Consult: talk, talk, talk to different people about your campaign demands – is it important to them? What are their ideas for change?

Surveys: a quick way to gather data to support your demands

Interviews: a valuable way to gather detailed personal insights and real-life stories

Facilitate Workshops: provide a safe and interactive space for dialogue, building relationships and awareness, and gathering detailed evidence and feedback.

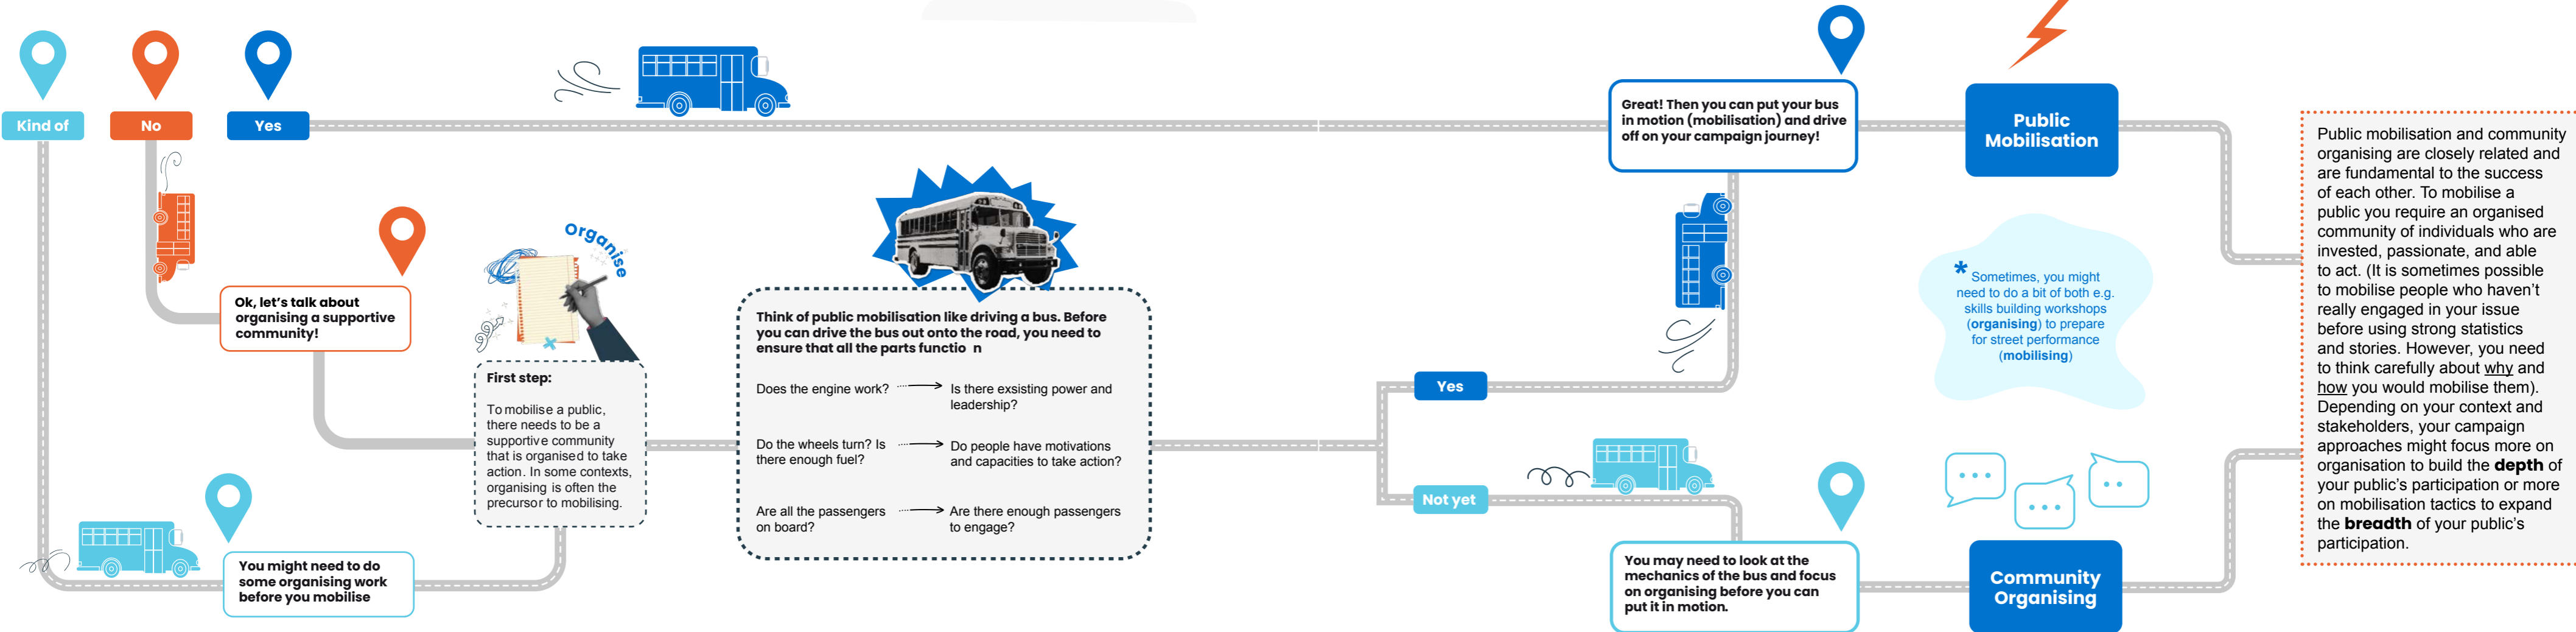

Public mobilisation - the big one!

Public mobilisation is a set of activities that asks a community of people to take action for a specific outcome. It can take many forms, such as organising a rally, writing letters, signing petitions, and even holding celebratory parties. Mobilisation is a set of activities that creates an enabling environment for decision makers to take on recommendations and policy positions – to make decisions for change and for good. The following pages will explore this approach in detail.

Public mobilisation

Before you jump straight into these mobilisation activities, first ask yourself this question:

Is there already a supportive and organised community or network who we can mobilise? (Do they agree with our cause? Are they ready and willing to enthusiastically stand up with us?)

Tactics

Community Organising	Public Mobilisation
Online Collecting a database of supporters e-mails* (with their consent!) Building a highly-engaged social media audience and developing targeted posts *Make sure you follow the relevant data privacy laws	Online Social media challenges Twitter storms Online competitions Online petitions or letter writing
Offline Mapping your allies Holding deep conversations with individuals to build their awareness and desire to act (e.g. hosting meetings or public Q&A lectures to hear from experts) Building the skills and capacities of your supporters and partners to take action (e.g. organising an event or workshop)	Offline Artivism (crafting banners, street art) Performance theatre Protests and rallies Strikes Community marathons or sport events

Another way to think about it...

Community Organising		Public Mobilisation
Build leadership by transforming the motivations and capacities of members to take on activism and leadership	How to build power	Build membership by playing on existing motivations
Develop leaders to engage with more people	How to build members	Identify and invite as many people as possible
Responsibility is distributed, actions are concentrated on building the capacity a smaller group of people	Strategy	Actions come from centralised group of people to a larger base of supporters
Depth of support	Results	Breadth of support

Kadiatou, 18, is a slam artist and activist. Through Plan International's GirlEngage project, she champions girls' rights, education, and safety. ©Plan International / Sylvain Cherkaoui

Tips for campaign messaging

Exercise: building your pitch

Use the following exercise to think through how you would communicate your campaign to others, and how you would convince them to support you.

Scenario:

Imagine you and your fellow activists have secured a meeting with your town mayor to ask them for local funds. They are a busy person. You have a limited amount of time to convince them to support your objective. You need to grab their attention and make a compelling case. Use the following exercises to think about how will you pitch your idea to them in a powerful and concise way. It's important to understand their position as well – have they been supportive of the issue in other ways? If so, you should recognise this, thank them for their support so far.

Manu, 18, from Nepal, as part of the Steam Ahead initiative, she has gained the confidence and skills to lead change in her community ©Plan International

Structure your pitch

1. What is your campaign about?

State your campaign goal – what is the world you want to create?

2. What needs to change and why is it so important?

Situate your objectives within the wider context. It's important to express the moral urgency of your envisioned change here

3. Why do they need to be involved?

Why should they care? How are they affected? What has already been achieved?

4. Examples of success stories and how they benefitted your target audience.

This is a good place to plug in your key facts.

5. What are the next steps?

This is your call-to-action or your demand. What are your practical recommendations or actions for them to take?

Remember - Be specific and don't forget to practice, practice, practice! The key to a successful pitch is timing, body language and content. Practice in front of the mirror, with a friend or record yourself on a phone.

Different stakeholders need different messages. Think about how you might tailor your messaging on each campaign demand depending on who you're engaging (e.g. friends, students, community leaders, politicians and ministers etc.) Always try to frame it in terms of their interests – why should they care? What's in it for them?

A community leader

How will supporting your campaign benefit the community? How will your campaign contribute to the overall development and prosperity of the community? You might even consider, how will your campaign benefit the community leader/council itself?

A fellow student or friend

How does this issue impact their civic and political rights? How is this impacting their daily lives? How will joining your Campaign benefit them?

A politician or decision-maker:

How will supporting your campaign advance their political agenda? How will this help them deliver their promises to the public? How will this help them uphold the national, regional and international policies and legal frameworks to which they are bound?

A private company

How will supporting your campaign increase their profit margins? How will supporting your campaign help them to meet their corporate social responsibility (CSR) requirements?

There are many other stakeholders to whom you can pitch your campaign. Refer back to the section on How to conduct an analysis of your context to remind yourself who you need to target.

Tools!

Here are some great tools to help you pitch your campaign to others:

The Story of Self, Us and Now is a time-tested storytelling tool for powerful and persuasive messaging.

Here's a worksheet to help guide you.

Here's a really useful article on how to create powerful messaging for campaigns.

Check out MobLab's Campaign Accelerator resources for narrative building and pitching your campaign

Plan International's Advocacy Toolkit pages 60-63.

Pitching tools and public speaking tips on page 13 of FRIDA Resource Mobilisation Toolkit

Appeal to your audience

Using the Head, Heart and Hands tool, think about how you might communicate your campaign to your stakeholders that you identified earlier. This doesn't need to be longer than one page.

Tips for strategic communications

First, ask yourself these questions:

Why are you communicating with people? Is it to mobilise the public? To raise awareness? To pressure a target?
Who is your target audience?

How well informed are they about your cause? What techniques will capture their attention?

What channels are they on? What communication or media platforms have the widest reach within your context – this could include:

- Social media platforms like Twitter, Instagram, TikTok, YouTube or Facebook
- Radio or podcasts
- Traditional media like print or television

Now, here are some methods you might consider:

Sharing or posting strong-evidence based stories, blogs, infographics, videos. Or creating engaging TikToks, Snapchats and Instastories.

Radio or podcasts might be more effective in some contexts. You might consider partnering with other activists, groups or networks who already have strong communication outreach.

For advice on using the media, what makes a good story and how to get noticed, check out pages 112-123 of Plan International's Advocacy Toolkit

Example campaign:

Ensuring the safety of girls and young women in the city

Example stakeholder:

Public transport operators

Example country:

Malawi

Head:

Did you know that X% of girls and young women experience sexual harassment on public transport in [your town/city] every day? [Insert your own case study or facts]

Heart:

Girls and women in Malawi are denied the space and opportunity to move in public without fear of harassment or violence. These girls and women are your customers, your sisters, aunts, cousins etc. [You could use quotes from girls and women or real-life examples here]. As custodians of this town/city, you could be champions of change – making the town/city safer for girls and women! In a safer town/city, everyone benefits...

Hands:

In cities like Lilongwe, there are examples of public transport operators (e.g. bus drivers) who have formed ally-ship collectives with each other to call-out sexual harassment and report perpetrators to local authorities #NotOnMyBus. Transport providers who are part of these collectives witness more girls and women using their services because they feel safer. As a result, we see reports of increased profit for those transport providers and reports of girls and women feeling safer. We want to partner with you to form such an ally-ship collective! Are you with us?

Free Tools!

canva.com

Canva's drag-and-drop features and professional layouts lets you to easily design stunning graphics and documents.

actionsprout.com

Facebook tools for nonprofits

storify.com

Social network service that lets you create stories or timelines using social media like Twitter, Instagram and Facebook.

hootsuite.com

A social media management system.

picmonkey.com

User-friendly photo editing platform that enables you to embed text upon photos, apply watermarks and create photo collages.

mailchimp.com

E-mail marketing management service.

buffer.com

Schedule, publish and analyse all your social media posts.

vivavideo.tv

A video editor that enables easy trimming and merging of video clips and into video stories with music, stickers, filters and subtitles.

statista.com

A searchable portal to multiple statistics databases all over the world.

wevideo.com

User-friendly, cloud-based video editing platform with advanced tools, such as animation, voice over, and clip transformation.

eventbrite.com

Event and ticket management tool.

wetransfer.com

Share large files and documents with others.

How to work with others

Plan's campaigns run on the power of collective action of diverse, girl- and youth-led movements for gender equality! Collective action that is, of course, locally led and globally connected!

Based on the stakeholders you've already identified for your campaign above, you can think about how you might create alliances or partnerships with those who share your vision or goals.

Collaboration, networking and a large supporter base increases your chances of achieving your campaigning objective.

Reasons to build partnerships:

- Share skills, resources, knowledge and experience from diverse people.
- Pool your financial and human resources.
- Reduces chances of duplication or competition in your local context.
- Safety and strength in numbers.
- Increase the power and credibility of your campaign.

Who can you partner with?

Depending on your context and goals, strategic collaborations could be with peer youth groups or organisations, civil society organisations, local or national governments, local or national NGOs, UN bodies or even private businesses.

Identify your allies

Do some research on other groups, networks and/or organisations who share your vision and campaign goal. Reach out (if it is feasible and safe to do so) and decide how best to work together.

Juna, 26, takes part in Girls Out Loud meeting in Sunsari district. ©Plan International

No matter who you partner with, it is very important to set clear and defined roles and responsibilities between you and your partner(s) at the start! Who will be responsible for doing what and by when? Make sure you document this in a written agreement, this can be as simple as an e-mail or a one-page paper.

Resources for partnership working:

How to map your networks (and potential collaboration initiatives)

FRIDA Young Feminist Fund's Resource Mobilisation Toolkit for Girls, Young Women and Trans Youth (Page 16)

General advice on building alliances and partnerships
Plan International's Advocacy Toolkit (Pages 111-112)

Ethical considerations
Plan International's Advocacy Toolkit (Page 113)

How can you partner with them?

- How to map each other's skills and strengths, and divide tasks (Pages 90-93)
- Activities for how to find and collaborate other activists, groups and networks (Pages 123 - 126)
- Activity to brainstorm collaboration initiatives (Pages 131- 132)

FRIDA's Resource Mobilisation Toolkit for Girls, Young Women and Trans Youth has activities for:

- Understanding relationships, patterns and distribution of resources (Pages 17-18)
- Approaches to create your desired network (Pages 19-20)

More Tools!

Want to join the International Feminist Network?
<https://feministnetworkproject.wordpress.com/>

Plan International's
How to Network Safely

7 Key Steps for Managing Partnerships
(pages 11-14)

Let your local Plan International office know about your campaign:
<https://plan-international.org/where-we-work>

Girls Advocacy Alliance Toolkit
(page 67)

Manage risks to yourself, others and your campaign

All campaigns will face risks – especially working on gender equality and girls’ rights due to the varying degrees of resistance and backlash. The important thing is to identify the risks in advance and plan for how to avoid them if you can – or how to manage them if risks turn into realities.

- Some examples of risks your campaign face might be:
- Lack of sustainable funding in the long term for activities and tactics.
- Resistance from government stakeholders, traditional leaders or local communities.
- Lack of clear roles and responsibilities defined within your campaign.

A simple way to think about the risks you, others and your campaign might face is to roughly divide these into two categories: internal and external. Ask yourself the following questions:

Internal	External
Are all campaign members aware of the measures to keep themselves and others safe and of existing protections (e.g. helplines, community safe-havens, and local police – if trusted)?	What potential backlash or resistance might there be to our campaign (at local, district, community or national levels)?
Are there specific risks that girls or young women in the group might face because of their gender? Are there other people in the group who may face risks e.g. LGBTIQ+ members, those with disabilities?	What kinds of discrimination or violence exist that are barriers/ threats to our target group’s active participation?
Are there enough resources/funds to undertake campaign actions? Have key stakeholders and partners been included in preparation and risk identification meetings?	How might this discrimination or violence escalate if there is resistance to their empowerment, civic action or rejection of social norms?

Try this activity to help you think through potential risks and how to manage them:

Risk description	How will you avoid or manage this risk?
Verbal or physically harassment from groups who oppose gender equality.	How would you avoid this risk?
Mismanagement of our funds	Learn from resources in How to fundraise effectively and sustainably
Exhaustion and burn out	Learn from resources in Self-love and collective self-care
Write your own

Helpful tools
 Plan International’s Advocacy Toolkit (Pages 68-69)
 Girls Advocacy Alliance Toolkit (Pages 48-49)

Self-care and collective care

Another major risk from campaigning is the risk to your own wellbeing. There’s no doubt about it: campaigning for gender equality can be stressful and exhausting at times. The political is personal. Taking care of our bodies and minds is very important. So is taking care of each other. Supporting our individual and collective wellness through acts of self-love and self-care will help us to overcome physical, emotional and mental challenges that come with the job of gender equality campaigning.

Self-care as an activist should be built in as a practice. In this section are some tips and resources to help you on your way.

Start here:
 FRIDA Young Feminist Fund’s tool to develop your own self-care plan!

Intersectional feminism
 Depending on our identity characteristics (e.g. gender, age, sexual orientation, race, ethnicity, religion, language, ability, socioeconomic background, rural/urban livelihood etc.) we will all experience different and multiple forms of discrimination and challenges depending on our context.

María Esperanza, 19, is an environmental activist from Ecuador ©Plan International/ Israel Lucín León

If you’re ever overwhelmed or need some creative inspiration, check out these awesome feminist self-care accounts on Instagram:

Hannah Daisy, Queer artist and mental health advocate:
@makedaisychains

Feminist Voice:
@feministvoice

Ashley Lukashevsky, Hawaiian feminist illustrator and Civic Media fellow:
@ashlukadraws

Caitlin Blunnie, Feminist artist and graphic designer for Marie Stopes International:
@liberaljane

Kruttika Sursala, Graphic designer for gender, equality and girls’ rights using satire and humour:
<http://kruttika.com/>

Handsome Girl Designs, Feminist self-care illustrator:
@handsomegirldesigns

Morgan Harper Nichols, Self-care advocate of colour:
@morganharpernichols

How to fundraise effectively and sustainably

Fundraising for a campaign can be tricky, especially if your group or organisation is informal or unregistered. But you can get creative! Here are some helpful tips and resources on who to target, what funders look for and how to raise your own funds!

Finding funders

Funding can come from a variety of different sources. These could be grant funders or individual donors. Here are some examples:

- Small trusts and foundations
- International NGOs
- Local NGOs and CSOs
- Embassies and consulates
- International multilaterals (e.g. UN or EU agencies)
- Corporates, businesses and brands
- The community with giving circles and community fundraising
- Local/municipal government budget for youth/children's activities

Toolkits for resource mobilisation and funding

FRIDA's Resource Mobilisation Toolkit for Girls, Young Women and Trans Youth has pretty much everything you need to gather resources and funds.

Recorded webinar on how to unlock more funding for youth organising (in English)

Plan International's Equality Accelerator <https://eacollectiva.org/>

Who can fund your girls-and women's-rights work? AWID's Feminist Donor List

How to manage funds

Fund management checklist (CompassPoint)

Recorded webinar training on grassroots fundraising and building independent funds (in English)

Youth Organising Financial Template (Funders' Collaborative for Youth Organising)

How to strengthen financial management (Wallace Foundation)

Reflection and learning

How to monitor and evaluate your campaign

How do you know if your campaign is successful? It's important to keep an eye on whether your campaign is having the desired impact. What to monitor and evaluate:

- Did the actions get a reaction?
- Did the reaction achieve a result?
- Did this result help you achieve your objectives?
- What worked and what didn't? And why?
- Were there any unexpected outcomes or factors?

Useful ways to gather evidence

- Surveys
- Evaluation forms
- Statistics
- Impressions or observations from people involved
- Consultations
- Audits
- The media
- Internet and social media

With your group, try the activities in these toolkits to monitor your progress and impact:

Plan International's Advocacy Toolkit (Pages 70-73)
Girls Advocacy Alliance Toolkit (Page 50)

Live and learn:

Don't worry if things don't work out in the beginning! That's normal. Achieving systemic change is a long, non-linear process. Very few strategies work instantly as planned the first time. It's all about reflecting, reviewing and tweaking your plans and learning from mistakes that will eventually set your campaign up for long-term success.

Section Three

Let's take action!

So, you've got your campaign basics sorted, now it's time to figure out what you need your key stakeholders and target audiences to do!

Mobilising the public

Mobilising the public - both online and offline - is a key part of campaigning. It's important for inspiring widespread support and demonstrating the urgency of your campaign demands. Remember, typically, the first step to mobilise the public is to have an organised, supportive community to mobilise from. (It is sometimes possible to mobilise people who haven't really engaged in your issue before, but you need to think carefully about tactics and sustainability).

Building a supporter based

For effective public mobilisation, you need a solid base of supporters to reach and engage. You can do this via online methods: social media channels, online pledges or building a list of people's contact information (with their consent!). Please ensure you observe data privacy laws in your context. You can also do this via offline methods: networking, coalition building, or hosting events/workshops/festivals etc.

How will you keep in touch with your supporters?

Ideas and actions

When thinking about what campaign tactics to employ, you should consider:

- What will have the biggest impact to achieve your campaign objective(s)?
- What might be the most practical or efficient things to do?
- What skills or contacts do you or your fellow campaigners, partners and allies have?
- What actions have you or your partners had success with in the past?
- Are there opportunities to be innovative or creative?
- Are there upcoming events, moments or national / international celebrations that would be strategic for your campaign to engage with?

We understand what's easy or hard may vary depending on your context, e.g. it might be harder for some people to take social media actions in places where digital access is limited or low.

Easier

Here are some things you can ask your target audience to do:

When you want to mobilise as many people as possible, choose an EASIER action (because you're playing on existing skills and motivations)!

- Share or post something on social media (e.g. an infographic, a statement, a video, an article)
- Take a survey, poll or quiz
- Sign a petition (online/offline)
- Sign onto an open letter to a decision-maker which you can publish
- Boycott a certain product or company
- Share your campaign to their friends, family and networks
- Write an e-mail or letter to a key power-holder
- Write a blog or article
- Donate to the campaign or fund a specific activity
- Attend an event, workshop, rally, march, demonstration, flash mob, festival, street theatre, or exhibition
- Enter a competition, or submit a poem or piece of art which can be exhibited with your campaign
- Speak at an event, festival, in a school, at a protest etc.
- Meet with a locally elected politician
- Organise or co-design an action with you

To succeed at a HARDER action, you will need to have a well organised group/public!

Harder

Need inspiration?

Here are some example actions you could take:

- Organise a street performance or forum theatre
- Contact your nearest Plan International office to get involved in a Girls Takeover
- Create infographics and share on social media
- Rally and petition your local government
- Organise an workshop, event or festival for building and promoting girls' leadership
- Organise a song/art/poetry competition
- Organise a march, rally or protest
- Check out 5 ways girls are tackling street harassment around the world!
- Organise a Chalk Back

Other:

- Create some collective street art!
- Create traditional dance performances or circles to raise awareness
- Organise a Twitter storm with your friends and networks on your issue
- Spark a TikTok video trend and get others involved
- Organise a Love Flooding (supporting girls, young women and other marginalised identities who are being attacked by trolls online by flooding their accounts with love and solidarity messages)

Follow these amazing people on social media:

Sophie Sandberg, founder of the Chalk Back movement and Catcalls of NYC explains how to deal with street harassment (@catcallsofyc)

@dearcatcalls

@ourstreetnow

Organise an Artistic Vigil

Learn from the Chilean women's protest phenomenon: Un Violador en Tu Camino

Organise a Solidarity Walk

Templates

In the following pages you will find the printable versions of the activities we used in previous sections of this toolkit.

Activity One: Stakeholder mapping

Example demand:

Example context:

Activity two: Stakeholders to target and how?

	Agrees with us	Disagrees with us
High Power
Low Power

Activity three: Head, heart and hands

Using the HEAD, HEART AND HANDS TOOL, think about how you might communicate your campaign to the stakeholders identified earlier. Remember, this doesn't need to be longer than one page.

Campaign demand:

Stakeholder:

Country:

The Heart
Why should they care?
 Convey the moral urgency!
 What is the situation and what needs to change?

The Head
What can change?
 Deliver your key facts and stats.
 Tell them inspiring examples/
 evidence of what is possible.

The Hands
What can they do?
 Propose practical ways that your audience can support the campaign.

Activity four: Identifying and Managing risks

Risk description	How will you avoid or manage this risk?

We won't stop until we are all equal.

Until we are all equal

About Plan International

Plan International is an independent development and humanitarian organization that advances children's rights and equality for girls. We believe in the power and potential of every child but know this is often suppressed by poverty, violence, exclusion and discrimination. And it is girls who are most affected.

Working together with children, young people, supporters and partners, we strive for a just world, tackling the root causes of the challenges girls and vulnerable children face. We support children's rights from birth until they reach adulthood and we enable children to prepare for and respond to crises and adversity. We drive changes in practice and policy at local, national and global levels using our reach, experience and knowledge. For over 85 years, we have rallied other determined optimists to transform the lives of all children in more than 80 countries.

We won't stop until we are all equal.

Plan International
Global Hub
Dukes Court, Duke Street, Woking,
Surrey GU21 5BH, United Kingdom

Tel: +44 (0) 1483 755155
Fax: +44 (0) 1483 756505
E-mail: info@plan-international.org

-  facebook.com/planinternational
-  twitter.com/planglobal
-  instagram.com/planinternational
-  linkedin.com/company/plan-international
-  youtube.com/user/planinternationaltv